Memory care facility prepares for November opening

By Linda Stinnett

Glen Carr House, a facility for those needing dementia care, has opened its sales office in preparation for a November opening.

Glen Carr House, 1437 N. Hamilton Drive, is the first of two planned residences in Derby which will offer innovative care for its residents. The design and focus of the facility is a whole approach design, according to Jason Wiley, president of Oxford Management Group.

From its name, size and design to its staff, the memory care facility is geared toward using the latest techniques to care for patients.

"It is all geared toward creating a greater sense of family relationships," Wiley said.

The Glen Carr House staff will undergo training from the only National Council of Certified Dementia Practitioners instructor in the state, Laurie Krenke. She is on the corporate staff of Oxford Management Group.

The residence will also use technology which engages memory, increases participation in activities and enhances overall health. The network-driven system can help
