All our holidays are validated with sponsors or organizations; or, we validate the source or origin for an observance to prove it's not made up.

We do not have holidays for every single day of the year. Sites that do, IMHO are making some of their days up. Beware! 😊

Also, some observances that are validated through website links, can't be updated until their websites update their 2011 information.

Visiting us is free! Our Holiday information is free. We have always paid all costs and remained ad free as well.

All my holiday and observances listings are not "fair use" information. They are copyrighted via this domain and are not to be taken and put on another website, blog, or made into a downloadable application, etc.. Doing so is a violation of the DMCA. .

Full Moon on the 28th is called "Snow Moon" by Native Americans of New England and the Great Lakes because this time of the year experiences heavy snowfalls. It's also called "The Hunger Moon" because of the meager hunting during this time of year too.
