Natalie Farrar

Natalie Farrar, vice president of clinical operations for Ridgefield Visiting Nurse Association, has successfully completed the requirements to be a certified dementia practitioner and a certified Alzheimer's disease and dementia care trainer.

The certifications required an advanced level of education, fulfillment of pre-training work and successful completion of an extensive training course.

In her leadership role with RVNA, Ms. Farrar oversees all clinical aspects of RVNA's home health care and community health and wellness services. In addition to being certified to provide direct care to patients with Alzheimer's and dementia, her CADDCT credential allows her to train and certify RVNA's entire clinical staff to become certified dementia practitioners to care for Alzheimer's and dementia-affected patients.
